

Warm face, warm heart

Another product that acquitted itself very well in Peru and since on cold rides was my BikieChic face warmer. Diane at Silverhorse Motorcycle Clothing assures me that they make one for blokes as well but I didn't mind the little pink and white BikieChic logo on mine. I think it kind of softened my sometimes rather rugged visage, eh, what?

The face warmer is designed to take over when it gets too cold for the lighter neck warmers such as the ARR and Cruiser+Trike ones we were giving away to subscribers. It is made of a thermal micro-fleece and covered with a water-resistant fabric that incidentally also makes it windproof.

I wore the face warmer in sub-zero riding temperatures and it worked a treat. The number of Velcro strips at the back means it can cope with different neck thicknesses, even mine, and the finish is really nice and soft. The cost is $19.95 and you can get yours from your bike shop or www.silverhorse.com.au. PT
